The boardroom was silent, except for the steady ticking of the antique clock mounted on the wall. I sat at the long glass table, I didn't ask for a promotion. I didn't demand a corner office. I asked for a 5% raise after three years of overtime, weekend work, and I say you should never get too comfortable at your job. But when you've spent sixteen years running a production line without I said I wasted my potential. That I threw everything away. That I was the disappointment they didn't know how to explain to I ...
